*Baby Boomers Turn Golden Years
Into Learning Years*

By Susan Bain Bellak

As the population of older Americans continues to grow, so, too, does the number of people searching for ways to lead more meaningful and enriching lives during their retirement years. This year, the oldest Baby Boomers will turn 60. The latest predictions indicate that by the year 2030, one in five Americans will be 65 or older. New England residents—many of whom are daunted by the thought of moving to a new region for retirement, often away from family and friends—have an attractive new alternative to consider: campus-affiliated retirement communities.
